Editorial

The spike in hits on the Village Website when this magazine is published shows that we now have a significant and established readership.

We hope that we meet a local need in what we publish but if there are any gaps we would welcome your comments and suggestions for improving our magazine - Quizzes, short stories, the choice is yours!

We are still learning the publishing business. Apologies this month go to Derek Bufton whose monthly advert was inadvertently removed when an out-of-date advert, which shared the page, was removed in preparation for the February edition.

We will be publishing the following content:

- Reports of local activities
- Free adverts for events open to the community.
- Paid adverts from local businesses offering local services
- Free private for sale adverts

The last two categories will be limited as we do not want to swamp the magazine with advertising. Our production costs are low so only a few select adverts from local services or sale items will be accepted for publication.

What is an Englishman?

Pre Roman Britain had trading links across the Channel and it was the value of this trade that persuaded the Romans that the conquest of Britain would be a profitable exercise. Where trade exists, traders followed and no doubt there were continental traders living in Britain before the Romans came.

Romans came with their legions, made up from Romans and auxiliaries recruited from other parts of the wide Roman Empire. At the end of their service, auxiliaries were granted Roman Citizenship and both they and native Romans could return home or settle on the conquered territory. Members from one of the Scythian (Iran/Iraq) Cavalry Auxiliaries settled in the Lune Valley in North West England to raise horses to supply the Roman legions. Over time they and their descendants would have been absorbed into the local population.

With the withdrawal of the Legions some Romans will have returned home, but many who had developed substantial estates in Britain will have remained.

The following centuries saw the arrival of Jutes, Angles and Saxons from the area which is now Denmark, Germany and Netherlands. This was followed by a Danish (Denmark and Norway) invasion which overran East Anglia and the North East of England and for a short period led to a United Kingdom of England, Denmark and Norway. This was overthrown by the English (now Anglo-Saxon) but shortly after the Normans (ethnically Danes) and their Northern French followers invaded. Although by this time most of the contestants (Anglo-Saxon, Danish and Norman) for the English throne were interrelated anyway.

For centuries, life on our island remained mostly stable despite occasional disputes with the Welsh and Scots, while Europe saw frequent changes in borders and some deposed rulers seeking refuge in England.

As England was a great seafaring and trading nation many ports had resident populations of overseas merchants and their families, a trend that predated the Romans, and as the medieval period developed, skills were sought from abroad. For example, in the reign of Elizabeth the First, fifty German miners arrived in Newcastle to help develop the newly created coal mines. Some may have brought their families, but the records show that some married local women.

Resulting from religious persecution in France, it is generally accepted that around 50,000 to 80,000 Huguenots sought refuge in the British Isles during the late 17th and early 18th centuries. All of these were absorbed into the English population.

After World War II, thousands of Italians were imported, for the mines and brickyards especially, and they together with the Windrush generation helped to rebuild Britain. We have continued to absorb people from the Commonwealth and those escaping conflicts and persecution around the world.

So, when someone waves the flag of St George and claim to be "a pure-bred Englishman" they need to be reminded that to be English is to be a member of one of the most diverse nations in the world. A diversity which has made the English "race" one of the most inventive, creative, compassionate and courageous, and has made the language of a tiny island on the coast of Europe, the most spoken in the world.

Safer Neighbourhood Team

Did you know we have a specialist team that deals with Rural Crime?

Types of Rural Crime:

Acquisitive Crime: Acquisitive crime in rural areas often involves the theft of high-value equipment and machinery, such as tractors, quad bikes, and farming tools. Other offences in this category include the theft of fuel and livestock

Wildlife Crime: Includes hare coursing, hunting with dogs, poaching, and interference with protected species such as bats, badgers and birds of prey.

Equine and Livestock Crime: Such as theft of animals, (horse) tack theft and livestock worrying.

Heritage Crime: Crimes that damage heritage assets, including lead theft from churches, damage to monuments, and illegal metal detecting.

The rural crime team work closely with safer neighbourhood teams like ours, to offer crime prevention advice and reassurance visits to our communities.

Gardening for Biodiversity by Chris Evans

To say we are on the verge of ecosystem collapse is an understatement. It's already happening in areas around our villages and in our gardens. Green deserts of closely mown, sprayed lawns, beds of hybrid flowers with little nectar for wildlife back onto similar monoculture farm deserts of highly tilled, engineered and sprayed crops. Small "islands" of biodiversity are refuges, but when they're too small, a tipping point is reached and populations collapse, having effects throughout the food chain. I remember in my youth in the village of Luston, many properties had "neglected" orchards behind them, havens for wildlife, teeming with insects, birds and mammals. One by one they have been "tidied up", cleared and usually built upon. In our comfy rural settlements, the story is of declining bio-diversity and wildlife populations.

But there are lots of things we can do, from small scale, easy interventions to more radical out-of-the box ideas, and bigger policies that parish, county and national councils need to take up.

1. Lots of websites tell you what you can do in "ten top tips for biodiversity", but rarely the first and most important action – stop doing harmful things: spraying pesticides, fungicides and herbicides; less tillage/bare soil (use mulching/min. till); less monocultures.
2. Mow long and less – not short, or often – leave islands of no/less mown
3. Provide habitat for breeding and foraging – think diversity, create microclimates: ponds (even washing up bowl-sized), rock piles, wild undisturbed areas; planks, sheets of tin on the ground; log piles, brash piles; leaf piles, compost piles, bug hotels, hedgehog hotels; bird boxes, bird baths, bird feeders.
4. Provide food sources (start at the base of the pyramid: plants with leaves, flowers & seeds) – rich soil and organic matter -> food for bacteria & fungi -> food for insects

-> food for birds, mammals

5. Understand what you have (resources) – connect with nature; observe

Attracting insects involves planting wild flowers, herbs, fruit trees, and other useful species. Here are some examples:

Ground cover: clover, trefoil, yellow rattle, lawn chamomile, thyme, vetch, pansy, wild garlic, sedum, violets, crocus

Herb layer: coneflower, marjoram, oregano, hyssop, rosemary, lavender, zinnia, nasturtium (also a climber), comfrey, borage, cosmos, mints, lemon balm, ox-eye daisy, poppy, lupin, calendula, marigold, sage, mountain mint, fennel, hypericum, rose

Shrub layer: sunflower, buddleia, tansy, currants/soft fruit, nettle, Oregon grape (Berberis), Cotoneaster, foxglove, mullein, teasel

Tree layer: crab apple, serviceberry, Eleagnus, Buckthorn, hawthorn, Strawberry tree (Arbutus), elder, rowan, lime, wild cherry, birch, holly

Vines/climbers: passion flower, clematis, honeysuckle, ivy, wisteria, rambling rose

Plant borders, beds, corners, verges. Most pollinator/insect-friendly flowering plants are also going to give a WOW benefit of beautiful flowers. Don't just get hybrids bred for colour though – they often aren't good nectar sources like native wildflowers are.

It's no longer enough to think that "our" garden is OK as a haven. There needs to be extensive, wide corridors of wildlife-friendly habitat within and around cities, towns and villages. Everyone has a part to play.

Report from your County Councillor

Dan Hurcomb

Congratulations to the committee and volunteers of the Recreation Ground on the opening of the new pavilion. A significant amount of time, effort and resource that has gone into making it happen and I hope that it will become a cherished community facility in the years ahead.

The January Parish Council meeting was well attended given the topics up for discussion and I was pleased to be able to update residents on the progress that has been made on local issues over the past few months. Of particular interest was the proposed “flood alleviation scheme” which is now moving into a critical phase – I hope to be able to share more details in subsequent issues of this magazine.

Parish Councillors give up their time and energies for free to represent the interests of local residents and I would like to publicly thank former Cllrs Bishop, Gittings and Rogers for their dedication and hard work during their time serving the community. I hope that the vacancies their resignations have created will be filled quickly so the Parish Council can return to normal service as soon as possible.

On a final note, in December I was asked to put forward roads to be considered for the 26/27 Highways Resurfacing Program. I can confirm that I have put forward Green Lane, Tunnel Lane, B4362 from Comberton to the Shropshire boundary, The B4361 from Portway to Ashley Moor turn, and Leys Lane (Ashley Moor). The budget is finite so there is no guarantee these will be done but they will be inspected as part of the request.

As always if you have any concerns, issues or would just like a chat, then please do get in touch.

Open the Book

Could you be a storyteller?

OtB is an exciting storytelling project where a group of people share Bible stories with the children in Orleton school on a Tuesday morning each fortnight. The stories are interactive and the children love to help deliver the 10–15-minute scripted Bible stories as part of Collective Worship. We are currently a small team made up of trained and safely recruited volunteers from our local churches and organisations who follow the Bible Society Open the Book Code of Practice.

A Bible story well told has the power to spark imagination, inspire exploration, give hope, create a smile, teach important lessons and connect generations.

We would love to hear from you if you feel you could join our group.

The children and staff make us SO welcome! Please contact the school directly.

Orleton History Group

On 24th January, we were treated to an entertaining and fascinating talk from Janine Bryant on "Bitten by Pigs and Struck by Lightning: How Coroners Rolls can Expand our Knowledge of Life in the Late Middle Ages". Look out for a full report in the next edition of Grapevine.

Our upcoming talks and events are:

Saturday 28th February 2.30pm, St George's Church:

The Medieval Chests of St. Georges' Church at Orleton: their Use, Significance, Construction and Conservation", by Rachel Sycamore, Furniture Restorer and Conservator. Rachel will talk about the two unique and important medieval chests housed inside the church at Orleton. She will explain how they were made and why, and what their meaning would have been to the medieval church and its parishioners. Having recently carried out conservation on the two chests, Rachel will talk through her methods in preserving them both for future generations.

Saturday 28th March, 2.30pm, St George's Church: An overview of St George's Church history John Berry and Liz Mackay lead us through an overview of the twists and turns of the history of St George's Church, looking at how the architecture, religious, social and political contexts changed.

Sunday 26th April, timings TBC: St George's Festival celebrations, with the traditional Mummers' play, Morris Dancing, games, and much more! Look out for publicity in future editions of Grapevine and round the village for more details.

You can also read reports on previous talks at the history group page at: www.stgeorgesorleton.org.uk (and then click on 'Orleton History Group').

Orleton Church & Chapel News

After the celebrations of Christmas, January has been a relatively quiet time.

In addition to the usual services and meetings, on 11th January, we had the joy of a Family Epiphany Service where we had a drama to Meet the Kings, followed by party games and a party tea.

On 25th January, we celebrated Jesus's gathering of his disciples through craft activities (followed by more activities and snacks!).

Moving into February, we see the start of Lent. Look out for details elsewhere in this issue of the Lent activities:

- Pancake Racing: Sunday 15th February, 3pm at The Maidenhead;
- Ash Wednesday service: 18th February, 6.30pm, St George's Church
- Lent discussion group: Wednesdays 25th February, 4th March, 11th March, 18th March, and 25th March, all at 7.30pm in Chapel

Details of our Easter services will be in March's newsletter, and on posters round the village.

Updates on our other activities, including an update on our Family Services, the Orleton History Group, Singing for Fun, Open the Book, food bank donations, and the 100 Club winners, can be found in our full newsletter, at:

<https://stgeorgesorleton.org.uk/news/news> , and click on 'Church & Chapel News'.

February 2026 Services & Times at St George's & Chapel

All are invited to join us in the Chapel for a short time of prayer and quiet reflection on Wednesday 11th and 25th Feb at 4.30pm.

Orleton Good Neighbour Scheme

The Good Neighbour Scheme supports our community using a team of volunteers to help people who are experiencing difficulty in their own homes essentially, by just doing things that good neighbours do for each other.

Examples of how the scheme can help:

- Fetching prescriptions
- Occasional lifts to the surgery or hospital
- Shopping and running errands, such as posting a letter.
- Practical tasks around the home, such as changing a light bulb or hanging a picture
